Innomotics to be led by Executive Chairman Dr. Thomas Wünsche

Nuremberg, June 10, 2026 – Innomotics, a global leader in electric motors and large drive systems, announced that the Group will be led by Executive Chairman Dr. Thomas Wünsche, effective immediately. Dr. Wünsche has served as Executive Chairman of the Group since October 2024, when KPS Capital Partners, LP acquired Innomotics from Siemens AG.

Dr. Wünsche brings more than 35 years of experience leading global industrial businesses through periods of transformation, growth and innovation. He previously served as Chief Executive Officer of Chassis Brakes International Group, a global manufacturer of automotive safety solutions, and as Chief Executive Officer of Benteler, manufacturer of high-performance automotive components and precision steel tubes with operations across more than 25 countries. Dr. Wünsche has a demonstrated track record of executing transformations, strengthening operations and building high-performing organizations.

Dr. Wünsche said, "We thank Michael Reichle for his tremendous contributions to establishing Innomotics as a thriving, standalone enterprise. Innomotics has benefitted from his vision and dedication during the separation from Siemens and transition to a fully standalone business. He oversaw numerous significant value creation initiatives that have set Innomotics up for sustainable growth for the years to come. We at Innomotics wish him well in his future endeavors."

Dr. Wünsche continued, "I am honored to lead the Group at this important time. Innomotics is built on a strong foundation of unparalleled technological innovation and delivers mission-critical, highly engineered solutions to support our customers' most demanding requirements for energy savings, decarbonization and sustainability. I am excited to partner with Innomotics' deeply talented team to continue delivering quality, reliability and innovative solutions to our customers, and to support Innomotics in its next phase of growth.”
